President's Message

In Rethinking Home, A Case for Writing Local History by Joseph A. Amato, the value of local historians is reinforced:

People of every place and time deserve a history. Only local and regional history satisfies the need to remember the most intimate matters, the things of childhood. Local history carries with it the potential to reconstruct our ancestors' everyday lives: the goods, the machines, and tools with which they worked, and the groups in which they were raised, in which they matured, celebrated, had ambitions, retired, and resigned themselves to their fates. It recaptures how they experienced the world through their senses: what they thought; how they felt; what they got angry, fought, and cursed about; what they prayed for; what drove them insane; and finally, how they died and were buried.

Practitioners of Pintlala-related history must capture the pathos as well as the facts of our heritage. Ours is a noble obligation.

Let there be no doubt that the Pintlala Historical Association appreciates Thomas Ray and the service he has rendered our organization. Now a resident of Crowne Nursing Home, Thomas was honored recently with a visit from PHA Board members. A resolution of gratitude and commendation, wonderfully penned by Jack Hornady, was presented to Thomas Ray on behalf of the organization he had served so well for many years. In addition Thomas was presented a financial gift made possible from contributions from PHA members.

Our Association elected Joy Shelton as our new Treasurer in the July meeting. Joy is well known and will execute her tasks with a high standard of excellence. Joy's contact information is elsewhere in this newsletter.

October 2008 PHA Program

The October 2008 PHA program will feature Dr. Charles Mitchell, Extension Agronomist with Auburn University since 1984. He has assembled a collection of images and stories which will take us on a photographic trip through Alabama's agricultural history. Dr. Mitchell received an educational award from the American Society of Agronomy in 2004 for this documentary.

The images in this collection were gathered from numerous sources including two old agricultural text books written by Dr. J. F. Duggar (see PHA Newsletter, April, 2008).

Come enjoy this presentation about an industry so important to residents in our community.

Book Donation - Pintlala Branch Library

Mary Lillian Shirley Rosier has donated a book to the Pintlala Branch Library, Ethel Tankersley Todd Historical Alcove on the Howard Family. She has traced her lineage back to King Henry III of England. The book is dedicated to Milo Barrett Howard, Jr., a cousin of Mrs. Rosier. Milo B. Howard was Director of the Alabama Archives in Montgomery from 1967 until his death in 1981.

Lewis E. Jones Genealogy Research at Pintlala Library

PHA member and friend, Lewis E. Jones of Phenix City, Alabama has spent many hours and years researching families connected to his ancestry. He has been generous in sending these files to us in order that they be used at the Pintlala Library. They have been listed in the newsletter as they arrived, but it seems that a review of the files might be helpful for those interested in the same family groups. We are appreciative of the work undertaken by Lewis and are eager for the files to be used by the public. Pintlala School Archival Materials Shared with PHA

With the beginning of major renovations at Pintlala School, a large scale housecleaning in all nooks and crannies of the building was a definite "to do." The acting principal, Rod Sellers, invited Gary Burton and me to come look through materials stored in the old metal lined projection booth upstairs in what was formerly the principal's office. We were excited to find the following historical items:

- PTA Journal, 1917-1933
- School Register, 1921-1922, Grange Hall
- Monthly Record of Trucks, 1922 & 1923
- PTA Minutes, 1938-1940
- Thank you letter to PTA, 1946
- Girls 4-H Scrapbook, 1957-1958
- Junior Girls 4-H Scrapbook, 1964-1965
- 1 4-H plaque
- 1 Curtis School Plan plaque

Mr. Sellers honored our request that these few records be given to the Pintlala Historical Association as permanent archives which could be accessed by researchers. He also gave the PHA an old glass-front cabinet which we are currently having repaired and refurbished with plans to display these items plus others in the lockable cabinet. We are in the process of getting permission to install the case at the Pintlala Branch Library.

We are grateful to Mr. Sellers for entrusting us with the care and preservation of above items.

The text below is a transcription from the Pintlala Parent Teachers Association Journal. There have been no corrections made to the entries regarding spelling, punctuation and format. I have bolded two terms : Kill Kare Klub and Auburn drive, in hopes that some of our readers might know what these meant to our community. Later installments will again refer to the Auburn drive. Organizations seem to struggle with similar issues, no matter the year--increasing membership and funding projects!--Alice Carter

The Montgomery County Archives now possesses the Minutes for the Montgomery County Board of Revenue (1875-1881) thanks to Bill Sansom who realized their value. The minutes had been in his family's care for many years. Following are Pintlala-related selections which provide insight into the post-Civil War development of our part of the county:

About Mt. Carmel School

In a recent missive of September 28 to Gary Burton, Lurline Hall shared the following poignant observations:

- Hannah Bozeman Russell is the only person featured on the cover photograph known to still be living. She is 89.
- Mrs. Russell recalled that Elbert Findley did not tear the schoolhouse down but put partitions in it for his residence.
- The school had a pot-bellied stove and outdoor privy.
- Many attended school programs.
- Charles Hall lived in Bethlehem, rode the school bus part of the way and walked the rest.
- The flat area behind the school served as the playground.
- Annie Laurie (Raley) Guy and Zera King were teachers.
- Zera King subsequently taught at Pintlala Elementary School.
